The last goodbye

Goodbye Vietnam.

My tears a silver stream of woe,

Trickling slowly to the cyan sea

And merging with the salt water of the under sea world.

Each heart beat pulsated faintly,

As I meandered away quietly.

Sunshine faded like tarnished gold

While the wind lulled its mournful goodbye.

My nation left to drift apart from me,

Planet Earth split into half-- yesterday and tomorrow.

Mid autumn festival

Amber full moon lights up the autumn sky,
Below, lanterns scintillate like tiny moons.
Moon cake festival blossoms joyously,
Children parade on the neighborhood
While sing-songing in harmonious unison .

The succulent taste of moon cakes evaporates onto the nocturnal air,
Ceaselessly livens up the Vietnamese community.
On the black celestial ocean,
The cyan stars glisten to celebrate this night with the earthly dwellers.

World cup Qatar

The middle east heat hovers in Doha,
Blazes like the heart of hell.

The golden trophy shines in Qatar,
Awaits for the world cup winner to be hoisted.
Emerald turfs ablaze with silky gleams
Like fields of evergreen gems.

Football begins to breathe again like four year ago.
